

CULTURAL DIVERSITY IN THE LAW

13 September 2017

On behalf of the Asian Australia Lawyers Association NSW branch, and The Law Society of New South Wales we invite you to attend the Annual William Lee Address.

According to the Australian Bureau of Statistics, as of March 2017, 28% of the Australian population was born overseas, however this is not reflected within the composition of senior leaders in Australian business. This event will provide organisations an opportunity to consider how to improve representation of cultural diversity in the legal profession and the ways in which to bridge the gap between diversity and leadership.

The panel will comprise of three highly esteemed facilitators: Lee-May Saw, Vice President of Australian Women Lawyers and Immediate Past President of the Women Lawyers Association of NSW; Professor Andrew Lynch of the University of NSW and The Hon. Melissa Perry, Judge from the Federal Court of Australia.

There are limited places available, please register early to avoid disappointment.
